

Notes on Contributors

E.P. Brandon is on secondment as Programme Coordinator, Office of the Board for Non-Campus Countries and Distance Education, UWI. He participated in the UWIDITE Education programme from its inception, and is now particularly interested in the potential of the World Wide Web for distance education and support to teachers.

David Geer has spent 25 years working in distance and open learning in higher education. Before that, he introduced 'self-directed inquiry' and 'independent study' in a number of urban and rural primary and secondary schools in the UK. He has pioneered innovative open education programmes in the UK and South East Asia. He has been with the UWI since October 1993 managing the UWI/CDB Continuing Studies and Distance Education Improvement/Expansion Project.

Claudia Harvey Claudia Harvey is an educator, researcher and manager with particular interest in policy change and implementation. She has led major change efforts in, and written on, the areas of education, health, gender and development, as well as community development. At the time of writing, she was the Director of Distance Education at The University of the West Indies, piloting the implementation of an expanded distance education initiative.

Kelvin Jarvis is Librarian/Documentalist in the School of Education Library, UWI, St. Augustine. He is a Fellow of the British Library Association.

Alan Persico is a Senior Lecturer at the Faculty of Education, University of Guyana. His areas of specialization include Afro-Hispanic Literature, foreign language education, and guidance and counselling. He is currently a local tutor for the Indira Gandhi National Open University Master's programme being offered at distance.

Gwendoline Williams is a human resource development consultant specializing in the management of behavioural and institutional change and gender in policy and planning. She is the former Head of Management Studies Department and Deputy Dean (Distance and Outreach), Faculty of Social Sciences, UWI, St. Augustine. She initiated and nurtured action to develop and deliver a full UWI BSc. Management degree by distance.